offsetting considerations for the custodial parent and the noncustodial parent. There are considerations that these people that establish these guidelines had before them that are much broader than this one factor of depreciation. My position is that we have LB 407 on Final Reading. LB 407 establishes a group of two judges, two lawyers who practice in domestic relations, two economists, custodial parent, noncustodial parent to look at not only this depreciation factor but all of the factors and report back with suggested modifications or changes to the Supreme Court and to this Legislature by January 1 of this coming year and by January 1 of each year thereafter. Now that is a process that will result in the give and take that needs to happen when we make changes as dramatic as I believe this would be. As I mentioned in my opening on the bracket, I have had calls in the last couple days from lawyers who are handling pending cases. They are certainly going to either try to hurry the result of that case or post...

SENATOR CROSBY: One minute.

SENATOR BROMM: ...or postpone the result of that case, depending upon the outcome of this bill. There will be numerous modifications that will be attempted if this bill is passed. The prudent thing to do, and I've made this statement, I'll make it again, is to delay this bill till January of 2000, till the beginning of the next session, and if Senator Crosby's (LB) 407 does not pass or if they don't proceed to implement a review of the guidelines by then, we come back and we send this to Final Reading and we pass it, if that's what we choose to do. And if we don't pass Senator Crosby's (LB) 407, I will bring a motion to bring Senator Baker's bill back onto the agenda before the session ends. But I feel strongly that the comprehensive approach of Senator Crosby's bill is the right thing to do, it's the fair thing to do, and it's...it's not because I don't have farmers in my district. I've got farmers. I've...

SENATOR CROSBY: Time.

SENATOR BROMM: ...got painters, other self-employed people, but this is the right thing to do. Thank you.

SENATOR CROSBY: Thank you, Senator Bromm. All present and
